Palmer (Mary, early 19th century). Young boy in hat ... skipping in a wooded landscape, 1812

Palmer (Mary, early 19th century). Young boy in hat, muslin dress and wide sash, skipping in a wooded landscape, 1812, monochrome pen, ink and wash in grey & black, on thin card, signed and dated in lower margin, some light toning and faint spotting, blank margins with some old adhesive residue in places, sheet size 275 x 215 mm (11 x 8.5 ins), laid down on thin board, loosely contained in a transparent plastic pocket, attached to card window mount (410 x 350 mm) NOTE: We are grateful to Rob Dixon for the following: Please note that this drawing is a copy of a stipple engraving by Bartolozzi after Sir Joshua Reynolds, and that it is a portrait of a boy, Lord Burghersh. We can be fairly certain that the artist is Reynolds' niece.
